Mr. Barca:

Several things have happened and our group would like to get in touch with you by snail mail.

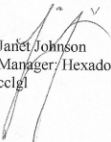

We would like to explain to you the penalties for slander and libel and the definitions for both. Your recent comments lead us to believe we should consider legal action immediately.

We also want to point out that the so-called "Hexadome" group in Australia are using illegal methods in their advertising and business operations. These have been reported to the commercial attaché at the United States Embassy in Sydney, Australia. Several of their actions are in direct violation of the GATT (General Agreement on Tariff and Trade) concerning international law. They move their illegal operations from one part of Australia to another. They are under surveillance. Others will also fall into this category.

We have provided you with more than sufficient information for building the Hexadome™ design by several different methods and materials. We have informed you months ago to seek the help of experienced woodworkers, such as vocational shop teachers or college architecture teachers. You could have done this months ago.

You seem to complain about buying two books written by the inventor of the Hexadome™ and one of them you complain is the same as the other. The publisher changed the name of the book which was to be re-printed with the original title of the first book. If you want a full refund of $9.95 per book, we will pay for both books and the cost of shipping to the above address. This offer is good for thirty days.

Contact me at the above address as soon as possible. If we do not hear from you by snail mail within a reasonable time frame, we will take action.
